A Television Talent Hunt Showcased on KRCA Show

As part of its continuing program to recruit new talent for television, the National Broadcasting Company is showcasing "The Ernie Felice Show," a 15-minute musical variety program over KRCA-TV, its owned and operated station in Los Angeles.

Felix Jackson, vice president in charge of programming, West Coast, announced the experiment today and said it was the result of a talent search being conducted on the West Coast under his guidance.

The show stars Ernie Felice as a personality-singer-musician and features songstress Sue Raney and six instrumentalists. It is being broadcast live in color at 6:30 p.m. Saturdays with John Nelson supervising production and Marc Breslow directing.

If successful, Jackson said, the show may be moved to a network time slot.

Network affiliates and owned-and-operated stations are aiding in the talent search by providing tapes on local acts and shows. From them, the network selects those to be brought to Hollywood for further screening.
